REASONS FOR AND BENEFITS OF THE ACQUISITION

Adopting its competitive advantage of deriving high quality zirconia ceramics products with its self-developed technology, Mianyang Siemax rides on these strengths and is able to manufacture products at competitive costs with product quality that is in line with industry requirements. Nano zirconia ceramic is found in many parts and components, such as mobile phone components, precision machinery parts and electrical components. Mianyang Siemax will initially focus its business development in the area of telecommunications, specifically for the supply of fibre optic ceramic ferrules.

As part of China's "Internet Plus" plans to improve broadband connections and fuel growth, the demand for fibre optic connectors will continue to be robust. As fibre optic ceramic ferrules form a main component of fibre optic connectors, the Company views it as an opportune time for such an investment as the Company's vast marketing networks in the same industry can serve as a bridge for Mianyang Siemax's business strategy. This synergistic effect is in line with the Company's focus to extend its operating footprint in the telecommunications industry. In addition, the Group's solid foundation provides an ease of access to its entrenched clientele network which will serve to accelerate Mianyang Siemax's expansion plans while continuing research and development work on advanced ceramics. In the medium term, this will bring added-value for the Company and its Shareholders.

The terms of the Sale and Purchase Agreement have been arrived at after arm's length negotiations among the parties. The Directors (including the independent non-executive Directors) consider that the Sale and Purchase Agreement has been entered into on normal commercial terms, the terms of the Sale and Purchase Agreement are fair and reasonable and the Acquisition is in the interests of the Company and its Shareholders as a whole.
